"Well, it was fust grand — just grand; You girls that got it up ought to be proud of yourselves! It was a redit to the First Combined church; on cert'aly couldn't have done it bet r; the talent was just splendid.

"That skinny little planist from Syr cuse was simply perfect—simply erfect! She didn't look as if she could play a bit, and nobody expect ed anything of her, but my! she did aske those keys travel! I thought she was a perfect wonder, especially in that piece where she broke down you remember!

"And that awfully good-looking no rano! Weren't you lucky to get her! never saw a more stunning creature in my life such a pity that she flatted all her high notes! They say she comes originally from New York and were tights in a comic opera till ome broker-but that's the way it es; you can't pick and choose the past life of your talent. It's too bad hat Mrs. Brown—the Baptist Mrs. Brown, I mean-knew all about this

"But naturally the prize of the evening was that impersonator. Wann't he funny? And how did he think up all those lokes about Capua people? just laughed myself sick when he told shout George Moore being so absent minded that he put his umbrella to red and stood up himself all night in the ball. And that joke about Mr Hinkly, the constable -- no use to vaccinate him-he couldn't catch any hing! But I thought the best joke of the lot was the one he sprung on fat old Mr. Simms. You remember that don't you? Why, the young fel low said that Mr. Simms came down to his bank one morning and was takon sick with appendicitis, and the doctors had to hold a consultation-they The flidn't know whether to operate or to blast. I thought it was a shame when Mr. Simma got up and went out mad and said he wouldn't contribute a blessed cent to the building fund ... Ruccess, wasn't it?"—Horatio Wins
